

HUMAN RESOURCES TRAINING AND DEVELOPMENT SERVICES

Managing human resources matters is often time consuming and tricky to navigate, with many potential risks associated with the personnel decisions employers are asked to make on a daily basis. Our Human Resources Training and Development team offers training and educational opportunities to assist and guide in-house teams through a variety of human resources issues.

Designing practical, relevant training programs for your employees, supervisors, managers and executive leadership team is our goal. Each program is developed and customized to fit your organization's culture and needs.

Trainings that our team can provide, but are not limited to, include:

- I Need a Leave from Managing Leave – This program combines training on FMLA and ADA leave to address and prepare for the issues managers and HR personnel encounter when it comes to employee leave rights.
- Managing Through the ADA (or FMLA) – This program covers employment rights and the accommodations disabled employees are entitled to.
- The Employment Relationship from Beginning to End – This program discusses nine key topics and considerations that take HR professionals through the complete employment relationship.
- Social Media and the Workplace: Staying in Line While Online – This program outlines key strategies to consider when navigating the challenges associated with social media from both the employer and employee sides.
- Harassment in the Workplace: Walking the Tightrope and Setting the Right Tone – This program covers the core components of harassment in the workplace, helps executives assess their potential liability exposure and provides practical, common-sense strategies for handling harassment complaints.
- Wage and Hour and Overtime: The Trickiest Rules and Best Practices Managers Need to Know – This program trains managers on wage and hour compliance and the often subtle or tricky wage and hour rules that they as frontline managers or HR professionals will need to know to ensure compliance.
- Keep Calm and Manage On – This program focuses on navigating a myriad of employment issues that impact your organization's personnel.

If you don't see the training topic or program listed here that you need, let's connect. We have provided training on a wide variety of topics, or we can design a program to meet your organization's specific needs.
